What is the training about?

This training covers how to conduct a death scene investigation (DSI), including doll reenactments. Attendees will learn what information medical examiners, coroners and law enforcement need during a child death investigation.

Why attend?

A thorough DSI is key to understanding the who, what, where and why of each child death. Doll reenactments are a proven tool that helps get a clear account of events, which supports efforts to prevent future deaths.

Who should attend?

Law enforcement, child protective services, medical examiners, coroners, emergency department providers and first responders.
